

Joyce is the very beautiful single female Black doctor doing her thing in London. She has the perfect, enviable and sensible life until she is blind-sided by deception in her love life. That has her in a funny place and doing funny things to cope. Relying on friends and the Diasporan family, Joyce feels her way through her life and the challenges of the modern Black professional in the UK. How did she respond when THE FINAL COME DOWN CAME? With effervescent characters and employing sassy language, exuberant and incisive wit, flowing passion and great compelling humour, Joyce, a woman in conflict deals with her love life in this enthralling debut.
